From: Dennis Miedema

Dear Reader Who Wants To Get The Women & Dating Part Of His Life Handled:

Please read the following sentences carefully:

Right now you're on a path... whether you realize it or not...

MASSIVE and Consistent Success With Women... OR... A Complete and Utter Failure With Women. You Choose!

You're either on a long, troublesome path that ends with you losing every single girl you meet and date or not even being able to "get the girl" at all... and which is filled with frustration, confusion, desperation and huge amounts of your time gone to waste as you feel more and more insecure and like there's something wrong with you.

Or, you're on the short and easy path that leads to you living the kind of lifestyle that enriches your life, gives you social success, and a love life that will quickly free you, liberate you, reward you, and forever give you the ability and opportunity to date who you want, whenever you want, how you want and no matter what – IF you choose to.

There's absolutely no in-between (other than NOT having a social life and love life at all).

Sadly, as I'm sure you realize, most men are on the former path.

Most men will, unfortunately, never be able to live a rejection-free, insecurity-free and heartbreak-free life with 5 dates a month with women, despite their extreme desire and eagerness to meet and date women and to be able to choose who to date instead of settling for less.

100% True Story: One Man's Path From No Friends, No Girls, No Money, And No Job To Creating His Dream Life... As A True Valuist!

I started learning how to be my best self and how to meet and date women in October 2004, around my birthday, with ZERO friends, ZERO girls, ZERO money, NO job and all that while still living in my parents house. I mean, I had no social or conversational skills whatsoever.

For the first couple of years, I worked my but off trying to build my confidence, create the lifestyle I wanted, and getting the success with women I wanted. Not being satisfied with the 1 or 2 dates a month that ended up going nowhere, I made an effort of befriending every popular guy or girl in town, every natural that was good at seducing members of the opposite sex and reading every friggin' book on self help that I could find.

Within just several weeks of applying the Valuist strategies, tactics and methodologies I learned from all of this, I was quickly able to get my own place, land a job and get promoted several times within a year (while I only have a high school diploma)... and to scale up my love life from 1-2 dates to 5-10 dates a month with different women every single month. Since my time growing my Inner Game, confidence, social circle and lifestyle, I have gone on to create a life where sleeping with women the same day I meet them, threesomes, having multiple relationships at the same time, and having a high paying job STILL without having any college/university education whatsoever... are not only possible, but very real parts of my every day life. I live my life and love life as a true Valuist on my own terms.

Due to my knowledge and grasp of the Valuist lifestyle-building principles, I continue to enjoy the fruits of having a high paying job, a large social circle and being able to get as much success with women I want on virtual autopilot giving me the freedom to do whatever I want whenever I want it, and with who I want to. As I recently shared on my own forums, the Win With Women Community, “The only reason I'm able to have as much success as I want in any area of life, is because I learned the key principles of being a Valuist... that set me completely free from my limiting beliefs. I still can't believe this is my life now!”

Why Most Men Will Never See That There's A Problem...

The vast majority of men out there that are not happy with where their life and their love life are now and where they are going never admit that it's a problem... let alone actually take action to DO something about it. So congrats if you're reading this, because it means that you're at least AWARE of the fact that there are some inner issues that need fixing.

But admitting there's a problem in your life isn't the same as working on fixing it. It's exactly why most men never achieve the results with women, and with life, that they want: they continue to do the exact same thing they have always been doing... and thus will achieve the exact same results as they have always been achieving.

Why is it so hard to change then? Because of a little thing called a `comfort zone`...

A comfort zone is nothing more than the little bubble you've been living in: it's everything that you feel comfortable doing, everywhere you feel comfortable going and everyone you feel comfortable seeing. It's your own little world in which you always play it safe... and THERE'S your problem.

If you feel safe and comfortable with where you are now and with what you are doing now, taking action to get more out of life is going to be a problem... because you'll feel UNCOMFORTABLE and NOT SAFE doing it.

Stepping outside of your comfort zone means stepping into a world where the fear of rejection and failure exist, and we would much rather avoid pain and seek pleasure now wouldn't we?

Meanwhile, the fear of failure is nothing more than a prohibitive habit pattern, a limiting belief, that got programmed into our brains by our parents when we were still young.

`Don't go near the edge, you might fall! Don't talk to strangers! Warning: enter at your own risk!` and the list of things we couldn't and shouldn't do as kids goes on and on, and we're told those same damn things day after day. After a while this transforms into us associating risk with an impossibility. We then equal something that COULD be dangerous and something that's unknown or unpredictable to something that is impossible and can't be done.

Do you realize what this means?

It means that from birth, you are literally trained to avoid ALL risk, ALL things unknown, ALL things unpredictable... and since going outside of your bubble that contains what you're used to feels risky, you can NEVER change where your life is going UNTIL you tackle your fear of failure!

It's the reason for men having an intense fear of approaching women: the risk is all theirs, they won't know what happen, they won't know how she will respond, and they're not used to approaching women. This has some major consequences... not being able to approach women means you won't be able to achieve success with women and dating because there simply won't be any women in your life, because you never met them.

Realize how stupid that is: you WANT to quickly get more dates with more women without much effort, or you WANT to be able to meet, date, and keep your dreamgirl... but how can you ever do that, when you can't even approach a woman because of your fear of failure?

What's worse, it goes way beyond that: the fear of failure will ruin things when you have to give a major presentation at work or at school. It will also stop you from meeting new people and thereby expanding your social circle, so you can say goodbye to becoming the most popular guy in town, the one that gets invited to all the parties, the one that everybody wants to be a friend of, the one that just can't do wrong.

This stuff is SERIOUS, it will screw up your social success, your dating success, it will limit what you will achieve at work or at school... and the list goes on and on.

Unfortunately, it's all part of a deeper and bigger problem: insecurity. What you believe about yourself, the world, and women. In short: it's part of a grand sense of FEELING UNWORTHY, a LACK OF BELONGING because you 'don't fit in' or 'shouldn't be where you are now'...

And worth, my friend, has everything to do with VALUE.

Has Anyone Fed You The Social Status Myth?

Please understand: Hollywood, your friends, your family... they've all accidentally fed you the big fat lie. Not because they're evil (well, not all of them), but because they simply do not know any better. Wake up and smell the coffee, because this 'lie' is all around you.

- The lie that you need to HAVE value in order to get women: fast cars, pretty clothes, a pretty face, money, power, fame.
- The lie that you need to HAVE value in order to get the best jobs: better have a diploma kid, or else...

And that reminds me of a video I once saw of this TV Show called 'The Keys To The VIP'. In it, two contestants compete with each other to see who's the better seducer and the whole thing is watched by a jury of 4 guys who select the winner.

There was an episode where a fella named Phil was competing with this guy John. Now John had it all: fancy clothes, good looks, a HUGE house, and so forth. Phil however, had nothing: no home, no job, no money... all he had was his friends couch to sleep on and an ugly looking, green polo shirt to wear. According to most people's opinion, Phil had NO value whatsoever so they would gladly bet they he wouldn't be able to get ANY results with women or in any other area of life for that matter. Meanwhile, there is a very small group of people operating every day with a completely different mindset that's on the latter path of living the kind of lifestyle that enriches their life, gives them social success, and a love life that will quickly free them, liberate them, reward them, and forever give them the ability and opportunity to date who they want, whenever they want, how they want and no matter what – IF they choose to.

Anyways, guess how Phil did?

Against all odds and against all 'laws of nature' he gets women's contact information despite of him having no value at all! And do you know why? Because achieving social and dating success, and creating the lifestyle you want, is not about HAVING value... it's about ADDING value.

And because of Phil's and his groups unique perspective and set of 'mental life-growing tools' they possess, they experience much earlier and much easier success with anything they do.

The Shortest Path To Achieving Social Success, Enriching Your Life And Dating As Many Women As You Want At ANY Time...

These individuals... called Valuists... are people that understand the shortest path to any goal in life... whether its trying to equal Hugh Hefner by dating as many women as they possibly can or by creating a social circle that propels them towards great riches... involves using the exact same Valuist principles.

These Valuists are true seducers that leverage the 'secrets' of adding value to people's lives to attract any circumstance into their lives that they want, and to ultimately design and engineer a lifestyle that's always satisfying, always a pleasure, always fun, and always rewarding.

This is why Valuists reap the enviable rewards of having a lifestyle that can't help but deliver on their personal exploits and desires, and frees them to enjoy the social and dating success of their dreams.

Which Of These Would You Prefer?

What many people think of as a guy who is successful with women & dating... is NOT a Valuist at all, but simply an individual who's a slacker and who sacrificed his job, his social circle, and sometimes even his family in order to pursue women 24/7... and eventually became good at it.

These are typically individuals who've luckily been able to create a love life of their sheer determination, blood, sweat, and tears, and after neglecting everything else that was important to them. This is NOT a model you need to copy. Not by a long-shot. All corners of the globe include many individuals with huge contact lists in their phones or on some instant messenger, who've been on dozens if not hundreds or thousands of dates, who've had more relationships than they can probably count, some of them are even known as 'dating gurus.'

But, what most outsiders and onlookers don't know or realize is that most of those dudes will need to CONTINUE to neglect their social circle, their job, their family, their social success and sometimes even their health if they want to continue to be able to have the same amount of success with women & dating.

Contrast this to the experience of the Valuist:

A Valuist adds value at the right time, in the right place and in the right order to design a lifestyle that will either directly give him what he wants or that will attract the circumstances necessary for it into his life... so he can enjoy the fulfillment of getting by giving... and of letting his social circle do all the work for him without much effort and within a short period of time.

Heck, force the guy to move to an entirely different country and he'll start from scratch, only to have a highly successful lifestyle going for himself again within a matter of weeks or months.

He doesn't have to sacrifice ANY area of life in order to be successful in another: he is successful with women, successful with people, successful as a family man, successful career-wise... all because of the proven principles of being a Valuist that work in ALL areas of life.

So, how does an average guy become a Valuist, you may be wondering.

Even more importantly, is it even possible for YOU to become a Valuist, and if so, HOW? The answers may surprise you...

First, it's critical that you realize:

Regardless of what phase of your life or of learning how to meet and date women you're currently in, you CAN and SHOULD become a Valuist and enjoy it's rewards.

Whether you have no friends worth mentioning and are still a virgin with no conversational skills... or already have had some success in the women & dating part of your life but want to achieve even more success, and do it in all areas of life... with the right decisions and actions today... you CAN quickly enjoy the fruits of becoming a Valuist.

In essence, the only roadblock or obstacle to becoming and enjoying the fruits of being a Valuist is your decision (or your lack of decision) to become a Valuist.

Please do NOT convince yourself otherwise.

There are no reasons or excuses why YOU cannot and should not experience the life-transforming joy of having a lifestyle and social circle that attract the circumstances that will give you success into your life, no matter what area of life you want to achieve success in.

So, I would ask that you commit right now to denying any thought, bias, or unfounded reason why you think you can't join this 'elite club' of true happiness creators.

Seriously... commit to it right now. ☺

Done?

Okay, good.

Then let's move on to the next step...

Now that you realize that there are no real obstacles truly preventing you from joining the ranks of Valuists, the next step is for you to recognize the difference between HAVING value and ADDING value.

Remember, if you start off going in the wrong direction with your lifestyle and social circle, every step you take simple moves you further and further away from what you really want... and closer to what you don't want.

These Little Things Called Character Traits... Is Where It Starts...

HAVING value is all about money, cars, clothes, looks, power, fame, and I don't even want to spend one more word on explaining it to you as it's all IRRELEVANT in the game of life.

It's all about creating and adding value, and it starts with character traits.

Take being dominant/being a leader for example, why is it so attractive to women? When we, as humankind, were still living in tribes among the wild beasts in Africa during primitive times, tribes were small and resources were hard to find. Finding the materials to make food, shelter and clothing was tough enough, let alone preparing it in the right way. Now in these small tribes there were several males, but the most dominant male could claim the most resources for himself and thus had the highest chances of survival.

The result: biologically speaking, women sexually preferred being with a dominant male over being with a submissive one, because being with the most dominant male would give them and their offspring access to more resources as well so they would have higher chances of survival as well.

That's when being dominant as a character trait became part of the sexual selection side of evolution where women would prefer dominant males over submissive males over time. Geoffrey Miller talks about this extensively in his book The Mating Mind and I highly recommend you read it.

Women attach value to being dominant and the moment you ARE being dominant, is thus the moment you add value to their lives! This is the first clue as to what attraction really is: it's adding value to someone's life, which attracts him or her to you more and more.

Most men that come to me for advice about women & dating b*tch and complain as soon as I tell them to be more dominant, they'll tell me "yeah but I'm not dominant, so I feel like I'm not being myself when I try it out."

Newsflash: being dominant has always been present in every man's deepest instincts simply because our genes want to survive and multiply, and you just forgot the true value of being dominant! It's not a matter of trying to be someone else, it's a matter of DEVELOPING what you have been neglecting since day 1...

Let's look at the same thing from a different perspective: social skills and social circles. Why do women prefer men who are popular, have friends of all subcultures, shapes and colors, and who have a social circle that serves them well?

Well, as time went along people gathered into larger and larger tribes until there was no need to move around and live the nomadic lifestyle anymore because a tribe's sheer size meant that there would be enough food for anyone at any time... and so they settled down and started the first cities thousands of years ago.

A major consequence of cities was that people became dependent upon each other. A real simple example of this: say you were the owner of a stable of horses and wanted to expand your business, then you would either have to know the biggest "horse buyers" of your lands or work together with other horse stable owners.

As such, it wasn't important anymore what you knew or what you could do, but WHO you knew. Knowing more people and being on very good terms with them meant having access to more resources, which increased your chances of survival.

Not only that, having excellent social skills meant being able to convince people of your beliefs, of your ways, which allowed you to let them do pretty much anything. And thus social skills became sexually selected by women as well... they became more and more valuable to women.

One other major quality that creates huge amounts of attraction is being the protector of loved ones. Why? This one's easy: throughout history, the man who could protect his woman and his offspring the best would give them the highest chances of survival (duhhh!) and as such women felt MORE attracted to men that could protect them and others better.

This is what an archetype fantasy of women is based on: the knight in shiny armor who comes to rescue (protect) them.

It's Never About You... And Always About Them

This is where things get interesting. I just explained to you how women are universally attracted to a number of qualities in a man: being dominant, being social, and being the protector of loved ones. But if you ever paid close attention to how people get sold on a product, then you would know that a company makes more sales as soon as they start making things personal... and individually attract people to their brand/product. They make things personal, about you, and then make the sale.

And while all women attach value to certain things (like the 3 qualities I mentioned before), they each have their own specific psychological needs. Guess what a woman will attach WAY more value to? A man who is dominant or a man who fulfills her individual needs? I think you already know the answer...

People that are absolutely satisfied with where their life is at and where it is going can't be attracted, but... the truth is that almost no one is a 100% satisfied... there's always a need:

1) An escape from the boring and mind numbing daily routines and obligations, like paying the bills, doing the dishes, going to work, work itself, and blah blah blah. For most people, life is one big routine, and they need a break... so why not be their vacation that came to life?

BE the adventure, BE the one that takes them on a journey, BE the fascinating and exciting escape from regular things and she will be drawn to you like bees are to honey.

2) When we're young we all dream of doing things, fantasize about being things and going places... but as we grow up we end up never going there, never being it and never doing it. We become disappointed with life because of our shattered dreams, and forever crave to live out these childhood ambitions of ours. When it comes to women, and people in general, all you have to do is give them a part of what they want and they will imagine the rest.

Has she been dreaming of being a famous actress since she was a little girl? Get her to an acting class or to take part in a theatre play, sit there and watch, and applaud her like she's as well known as Jennifer Aniston or Angelina Jolie are.

3) Some of the people that perhaps get disappointed the most, are the women and men that USED to be popular. They USED to be the star, the center of attention in their neighborhood,

Win With Women Presents – The Value Formula

class or department... but now it's all over. Doesn't mean that they don't want and need to stand out and get attention anymore, but this kind of behavior isn't appreciated in the workplace or in "regular" society and so they hold back... and eventually grow resentful. Attracting this type is simple: make her the center of attention again and let her talk about themselves, tone down whatever you do so she will shine in comparison.

Was she the prom queen in high school? Let her relive those moments by making her talk about her high school years, and by having a private little dance where you show up in fancy clothing and put a tiara (which all prom queens wear) on her head. Shouldn't cost you more than like... 20 bucks, while you will be able to give her the most value you possibly can: being the only one who knows and satisfies her secret fantasy.

Here's the juicy secret: the KEY to creating the social circle, love life, and even career that you want... is finding out what has the absolute most value to the people you want to befriend, seduce, or work for... and catering to those specific needs and fantasies will give you the success you want.

(Due to time constraints we don't have the opportunity to explore all the different needs and fantasies of human psychology and the techniques to turn them into your advantage here, but please understand... Valuists have a specific methodology for effectively attracting the right people and circumstances into their lives whenever they want to. And, it's this specific methodology that eliminates their fears and doubt and gives them peace of mind.)

The Big "Yeah But's"...

I can hear you think "this sounds awesome! But how can I discover people's needs when I don't even know them?" Simple:

1) Just... talk to them! What is the most important thing to you? What's the most important thing to talk about? YOU! So let people talk about themselves and find the tragedy, the drama, the lost dreams and hopes in her life and BINGO!

My favorite way to discover someone's psychological needs is to play a little guessing game I invented for myself that I call "Extremes" and it's really simple. Instead of beating around the bush and asking people general questions about their lives, you ask for the highest peaks and biggest downfalls: the extremes.

It goes a little something like this...

"What was the ... -est (scariest, weirdest, funniest, most disappointing, etc.) thing you've ever been through?"

Be the smart man and ask about what the most disappointing, most boring, most dramatic and so forth was... because it will give you clues about what bothers people about where they are now and in what direction they would rather go instead.

2) Cold reads! Tarot cards, palmistry, games like The Cube which is famous in the seduction community of men who want to learn how to meet and date women but virtually unknown outside of it... if you're into that, you can use it to discover stuff about a woman and THEN cater to it.

Most men think that doing something like this is building comfort, bonding with a woman and what not... noooo dummies! It's getting the right kind of information so you'll know what to do next.

I can hear you thinking again:

“But Dennis... it sounds like I at least need to be on a date with her or in a conversation with her to find the need, but how do I end up there?”

How you open is irrelevant, but how you respond to what she replies with first? THAT is what it's all about. I've opened women with "Hi", or with .... (no words here)... smile! They smiled back, and I knew enough.

So all you need to do is walk up to her and get a response, and then the game is REALLY on. It's the same thing when you're looking to expand your social circle by the way: what you say first is not important, but what you do with what the other person says... that's an entirely different story!

The Bigger Picture

And you know what the fun part is of my entire Value Formula? All you need to have to be able to become a Valuist too are: social skills... and conversational skills... and that's it.

Your thoughts: “so Dennis... I know when someone is angry, and how to have a conversation... so I have social skills and conversational skills, right?”

WRONG!

Having social skills is understanding human psychology, what people want and don't want, and using it to your advantage by adding value to people's lives so they, in turn, add value to yours.

Having conversational skills is being not the best talker, but the best listener... someone who can read between the lines and sense what people are REALLY trying to say... so you will be the one that understands them the best, and always has them leaving “high” because you have the ability to make people live in the moment, and have more fun than they EVER had.

I can sure understand it if this sounds difficult to achieve to you, which leaves me with one big “yeah but...” left to tackle: “yeah but... why make such an effort of developing social and conversational skills, while I can just as easily use character traits such as being dominant alone to meet and date women?”

There's a myriad of reasons for why you should choose to take the path of the Valuist over any other path... the first of 'em being that it leads to QUICKER results than any other way:

Instead of me needing to work my butt off for years and years to get promoted, I've gotten one almost every 3 months...

Instead of me needing to take weeks to be able to “get the girl” I can do it within the hour...

Instead of me needing to take months to build a new social circle from A-Z whenever I move to another city, give me one night and I will have made at least a dozen new friends...

And the second reason is that the results you achieve as a Valuist last WAY longer and are a LOT more rewarding than when you take any other path:

Remember that job? I know at least 1 important person in every department of the company, which makes doing my job a hell of a lot easier, people will try and befriend me just because I'm the one that gets things done the quickest, plus I make use of the social circles of everyone I know there to my advantage.

Remember that girl I got within the hour? Not only will I be able to keep her around for as long as I want, she'll be okay with me seeing other women, while I'm using her social circle as my own and once again reap the benefits.

Remember that new social circle? Whenever someone needs something, I hook them up with someone in my circle that can pull it off, the guy seeking help gets his problem solved and the guy giving help gets a chance to get a new customer or new friend, and as they do all the work? I'll be seen as the guy who made it all happen and they'll thank me for it, and return the favor whenever I want (and lots of times without me even asking for stuff).

And that, my friend, is a clue as to why becoming a Valuist should be your main concern the rest of the year: each area of your life will keep adding value to the other areas until you've attracted the circumstances of success into all areas and BE successful in all areas of life!

You no longer HAVE to screw up at work in order to be able to be successful with women, you no longer HAVE to neglect your friends to be able to have success with women or career-wise.

No.

There's no need to neglect ANY area of your life anymore... you can have it all... if only you started living like a Valuist lives and started looking at things from a Valuist perspective.

If the possibility of `having it all` sounds farfetched and unrealistic to you, allow me to bring out the big guns: the Value Triad.

The Value Triad: Key To A Rewarding Life...

Allow me to explain...

What are the three most important elements of any persons life?

- 1) Dating success (portrayed by the women & dating bubble)
- 2) Social success (with friends and family, portrayed by the social circle bubble)
- 3) Socio-economic success (realizing your ambitions, feeling fulfilled because of achieving goals, feeling like you make a difference with your job etc. all summarized in the career bubble).

To most men, these are mutually exclusive: you're either successful with women OR in your career... you're either successful in the social circles OR in your career... and so on. Valuists tend to disagree... and here's why...

The Women & Dating Bubble

As I already explained before, men who have large social circles, an active social life and so on increased a woman's chances of survival in earlier times which is why social skills became sexually preferred by women over other types of skills.

But, what if you would focus your social circle on attracting the women you want into your life? How? Say you're into Asians, than why not be a social hub for Asians, meaning someone that you organize "Asian Pride" parties, befriend people that work at Asian restaurants and what not (because they know other Asians AND get lots of Asians as customers), befriend Asian travel agents/stewards, befriend people that help Asians get their citizenship, and say you take part in all kinds of other typical Asian things to do... then it's only a matter of time before your social life GIVES YOU Asian women. Are you catching my drift here?

So... success with your social circle means higher chances of success with women.

Men who have a purpose, who have goals and strive for something bigger than themselves first and foremost come across like they actually have a life and want something that has nothing to do with a woman... which make them stand out in a crowd of desperate little wussies that give up their dreams for women because they're simply harder to get. And THAT, my friend, is attractive.

Next to this, genetics come into play once more. Why? Because a man who knows exactly what he wants and where he wants to go makes decisions quickly and never looks back. During primitive times, the tribal age, not being able to make a decision meant certain death from wild life, the elements of nature, foreign invasion, etc. And if you ever heard of Darwin's `survival of the fittest` and put a little thought in it, you'll realize that the one that is quickest to adapt to new circumstances survives... so decisive men with a purpose gave women and their offspring a higher chance of survival.

So... success career-wise means higher chances of success with women.

The Social Circle Bubble

Imagine how your friends would respond when they see you walking around town with a girl once a year. Nothing special, heck, you could even be called a loser for it. Now imagine how they would respond when they see you with a different girl almost every night... how would they react to you having huge amounts of success with women & dating?

Simply stated, you'd be their hero. They would want to know your secret, they would want to learn from you and hang out with you because you're such a cool guy, and to them... only `cool dudes` get the women.

And then there's the women... if they see you meet and date a lot of women, then they think to themselves that you must know how women think, how women feel, and what women want and gosh... would that make you a much better friend? Duhhh! You know a whole lot about women, so the pleasure of having a conversation with you is all theirs! And besides, there's a thin line between that and jealousy... seeing that they have competition when they want access to you makes them want you.

So... success with women & dating means having higher chances of social success.

I currently have a job with T-Mobile, one of the companies that allows you to make a friggin' phonecall with your mobile phone if you know what I mean. BUT... whenever a friend needs to know which type of phones have lots of defects, which areas of the country have bad reception, how the average phone repair goes and so on? I hook him up with the right info or the right guy to call, and I always know the solution because I'm good at what I do.

And that's not to brag, because I used my job to get into contact with people that know lots about banking, about laws and jurisdictions, about music and so on... simply by befriending customers and colleagues. And guess what happens when someone needs advice on any of these areas? I hook them up part 2 buddy!

And as such... success career-wise means having higher chances of social success.

The Career Bubble

Whenever colleagues, supervisors, managers and what not see me have success with women time after time, see me showing up at company meetings with hot women, see me help other men meet and date hot women... they want a piece of the pie too. They'll recognize my success with women & dating and respect me even more for it.

In fact, they have started noticing how I never end up having an argument with women whenever I'm talking to customers... it's always the guys. They find that so intriguing, that they eventually end up asking ME for advice and wanting to befriend me.

And gosh... would a boss that eagerly wants to befriend me be good for my career? Duhhh. Plus, my knowledge and skill of interacting with women allows me to do my job faster because they always end up doing little things for me... a favor here, a favor there...

So... success with women & dating means having higher chances of success career-wise.

Whenever colleagues, supervisors and so on, just basically any other employee of the company, needs help with (here we go again) banking, laws, music, getting the latest movies, getting their phone fixed quicker and the list goes on and on...

I once again hook them up. Hell, I even introduce them to some of my female friends, I get them to come to one of my parties so THEY'LL have the chance to expand their social circles, so THEY'LL see I know what people want, need... and gladly give it to them, etc.

Gosh... would they be glad to return the favor whenever I need it? Would it help that when I have a job interview, one of the people interviewing me has been to one of my parties? Duhhh... my career thrives because of that stuff.

So... success with my social circle means having higher chances of success career-wise.

Do you see now how social skills and conversational skills connect it all? That they allow you to become a Valuist who has it all?

And just to remind you here: playful teasing is one of the character traits that creates attraction, that attracts people into your life... the human psyche is attracted to it...

It's fun to be around, it's unpredictable, it's exciting, and refreshing to be around a playful teaser... he figuratively brightens the place up with his excellent sense of humor and playful enthusiasm.

So gosh... say you would use playful teasing not only with women, but also in your social circle and in your career, would that add value to people's lives and thus help YOU to be successful?

Yes sir, it does.

Does finding out someone's psychological needs and fantasies help you in your social circle and even in your career? Career-wise: more sales/customers that walk away from you with a smile and managers that like you wayyyy better.

So off course!

In the grand scheme of things, the Valuist always wins... why? Because he never stops giving, gets tons in return for it, and has the freedom to enjoy a lifestyle where the career, social, and dating parts of his life don't conflict, collide, and battle it out with each other... but intertwine, MIX, and infinitely add value to each other.

And the awesome part is that success breeds success... by surrounding yourself with successful people, both career-wise, socially speaking and with dating, you can't help but become more successful when you involve yourself with them...

Your life as a Valuist will be one big, upward spiral where things look better, and better... and better for you as each day goes by. It's really a beautiful thing.

If you agree, I would urge you to make the necessary changes to the way you're living your life so you too can enjoy the benefits of being a Valuist. And please, understand that it's a lot easier and quicker of a change than you may think when you know exactly what, when, where, and how to do everything.

And guess what? I'll be showing you how to make the change during the next couple of days inside my newsletters... so keep an eye out for more of my emails!
